Health Alliance for Technology (ALLtech) recognizes the important role of various trade organizations in shaping Washington State's economic environment. These types of organizations bring businesses and jobs to Washington. As community stewards, they share industry expertise, foster collaboration, create networking opportunities and offer select business services.

Trade associations are oftentimes the first place companies look to for business solutions. ALLtech is proud to support organizations such as the Washington Technology Industry Association (WTIA) through our business relationship. By joining the WTIA, employer groups can take advantage of additional premium savings offered by ALLtech.
